Stages description

Day 1: Individual arrival in Ettlingen

Ettlingen is the gateway to the Alb valley and the Alb river dominates the cityscape here. It flows in small canals through the old town, and you can cross it over many, small pedestrian bridges. If you arrive early enough, there may be time to visit the Ettlingen Castle.

Day 2: Ettlingen – Bad Wildbad, approx. 55 km

Today you set off for the northern Black Forest. A first particularly impressive panoramic view opens up to you at the Schwanner Warte near Straubenhardt. Up to the Black Forest village of Dobel you master your first ascents. In your destination of the day, Bad Wildbad, you can still feel a bit of the flair of the 19th century. Visit one of the two thermal baths and let the healing effects of the water take effect on you.

Day 3: Bad Wildbad – Freudenstadt, approx. 50 km + cable car

At the beginning of the day, you board the Sommerbergbahn and ride up to the high plateau of the Sommerberg. Here it is worth taking a walk on the tree-top walkway with the Wildline suspension bridge arching upward. It offers fantastic views of the surrounding hills and valleys of the northern Black Forest. You then cycle along the Black Forest Panorama Cycle Path to Freudenstadt.

Day 4: Freudenstadt – Villingen, approx. 70 km

Your route today leads along the Black Forest Panorama Cycle Path. Passing small Black Forest villages such as Seedorf and Mariazell, isolated farmsteads and across fields and orchards, the route leads to Villingen. A detour can also be taken via the Alpirsbach monastery with the brewery of the same name.

Day 5: Villingen – Titisee / Hinterzarten, approx. 50 / 55 km

Today's stage is regularly up and down, but with rewarding scenery. On the Höchstberg, you reach the highest point of your cycling trip. Fast descents give you the opportunity to relax your calves or you cool them off in the Kirnbergsee, which is on the way. A boat ride across Lake Titisee can be a nice way to end the day.

Day 6: Titisee – Freiburg, approx. 40 km

On your last stage of the trip, you cycle from Titisee via Hinterzarten and Oberried to Kirchzarten. You now leave the Black Forest behind and enter Freiburg, the city with the most hours of sunshine in Germany. The „Bächle“, the little water channels that run through the old town give the city its very own flair. From the Schlossberg you have a great view over the city and the surrounding area.

Day 7: Individual departure

After breakfast you start your individual return journey home or extend your stay.
