Stages description

Day 1: Individual arrival in Freudenstadt

Freudenstadt is your base for the next two cycling stages. Germany's largest marketplace with its water fountains wants to be explored. Here you find small stores and cafés in the arcades, inviting you to stroll and linger.

Day 2: Excursion into the Murg Valley: Freudenstadt – Rastatt, approx. 50 / 60 km + train ride

The first stage runs down the valley along the Murg River. You leave Freudenstadt and soon reach Baiersbronn. Up to Forbach, the valley becomes narrower and narrower and is probably the most beautiful section of the route today. From Gernsbach you practically just roll on to Rastatt. A visit is worthwhile to the Residence Palace - the Versailles of Baden. The train takes you back to Freudenstadt.

Day 3: Excursion into the Neckar Valley: Freudenstadt – Glatt – Horb – Eutingen + train ride, approx. 50 km

Today, through a dreamlike forest landscape, you first go to Lossburg, the source of the Kinzig. Continue to Leinstetten on the Glatt, which you follow to the town of the same name. Visit the moated castle there. It is one of the most beautiful Renaissance castles in southern Germany and houses several museums worth seeing. After you meet the Neckar shortly after Glatt, follow its course via Horb to Eutingen. Take the train back to Freudenstadt.

Day 4: Freudenstadt – Enzklösterle – Bad Wildbad, approx. 45 km

From Enzklösterle in the Enz valley, you travel over the eastern range of hills of the Murg valley to your overnight stop Bad Wildbad. In this historic spa town, you can still feel a bit of the flair of the 19th century. Why not visit one of the two thermal baths and let the healing effects of the water take effect on you?

Day 5: Bad Wildbad – Pforzheim – Calw, approx. 45 km

Until you reach Pforzheim, you continue to follow the river Enz. The city is the center of the German jewelry and watch industry. You continue along the Nagold river. Your overnight stop today is the Hermann Hesse town of Calw. You can get a slightly different view of the town by joining a themed walking tour of the town's most famous son.

Day 6: Calw – Nagold – Horb – Eutingen – Freudenstadt, approx. 60 km + train ride

You continue to follow the Nagold and cycle through the foothills of the Black Forest past Wildberg to the town of Nagold. Here you leave the Nagold valley behind and from now on you cycle in the neighboring Neckar valley. Your stage destination Horb am Neckar has a well-preserved old town, through which a stroll is recommended. You continue cycling to Eutingen im Gäu and take the train to return to Freudenstadt.

Day 7: Individual departure or extension of stay

After breakfast you start your individual return journey home or we extend your stay.
